TENNYSON'S STORY.

Lord Tennyson used to tell how an urchin in Lincoln once got the better of him in a perfectly fair way. He was looking for a certain chemist's shop one morning, and meeting a lad, he said: "My boy, may I inquire where M's shop is?"

"Yes, sir," answered the boy, in a very respectful and solemn manner. "Well," said Lord Tennyson, after waiting awhile, "where is it?" "I haven't the least idea," replied the boy in the same respectful and solemn manner.

Congress Has Much to Do in Hawaii.

The sooner it undertakes the task the sooner the interests of civilization advance.

The following article, originally printed in the New Orleans City Item, and afterwards reprinted in the Louisiana Planter, is reproduced in this paper to show the feeling in the United States on the contract labor system:

The Philadelphia Record calls attention to a case of slavery in Hawaii which should appeal to the sympathy of all humane people. It appears that there are thirty-seven Austrian subjects languishing in jail on the island of Oahu because they refused to perform work which the most robust constitution could not stand. "They were imported as coolies," says the Record, "with the most alluring promises of the delightful life they would lead in that tropical region; but after the cruel experiences of a slave life of three months on a sugar plantation they escaped. As they were alleged to owe their pretended plantation lords some money for their transportation they were captured and put in prison in order to compel them to return to their harsh toil."

Here we have the outlines of a tragic story. The information obtained by the Record seems to be authentic, for it comes from Rabbi M. S. Levy, of San Francisco, whose authority is not questioned in that section of California. The Record states: "That these contract laborers under a system of white slavery were imported into Hawaii from Bremen under a contract for three years' service. Notwithstanding the laws of the United States on this subject, the American authorities on the Hawaiian Islands have evidently been much more zealous in enforcing an iniquitous slave system in behalf of the sugar planters on the islands than in obeying the humane spirit of our laws."

It is evident that while there has been an extension of American authority in the Hawaiian archipelago, the guarantees of liberty and personal rights have not yet been extended to the humble dwellers of that region. More than a year has elapsed since the Hawaiian Islands were annexed to this country, and the tardiness and procrastination of Congress has resulted in absolute failure to establish American institutions in the island group. It was for the suppression of a system something like that which now prevails in certain parts of Hawaii that the North and South went to war thirty-eight years ago. The Record truthfully says:

"The slave-owners in the South provided for human property after it was too old and decrepit to work; but under the Hawaiian system men are enslaved for a certain contract period, during which their lifeblood is sucked out of them, and then they are flung away to die in want and misery. It appears from the policy of the Government that the Hawaiian Islands were annexed for the sole benefit of a few sugar planters, and that the rest of the inhabitants are not worthy of consideration. This is what explains why the abominable system of coolie labor flourishes in all its pristine vigor on the Hawaiian Islands, under the full protection of the Government of the United States, and under the folds of the starry flag."

The Record may argue from the standpoint of democracy, but its position is impregnable. It is clear that we have much to do in Hawaii and the sooner we undertake the task the sooner we will advance the interests of civilization.

Disturbed the Peace

A woman in white was arrested last evening for disturbing the quiet of the night. She proved a hard customer to handle, the efforts of two policemen being necessary before she would submit. The trio very much the worse for wear, finally reached the station where the woman in white was locked up.

WANTED HIS MONEY BACK.

The maddest man in Platte County lives at Humphrey, says the Columbus, Neb., Times. He attended a social, and during the evening the ladies inaugurated a hugging bee, the proceeds to go to the Sunday school. Prices were graded according to the person hugged. For instance, for hugging a young, inexperienced girl the bidder had to give up 10 cents, married women brought 15 cents and widows a quarter. Well, the man was blindfolded and, giving up 15 cents, he said he would take a married woman. After he had hugged 15 cents' worth the bandage was removed from his eyes, and he beheld he had been hugging his own wife! Then he kicked and wanted his 15 cents back.
